

IBS Show 2017

Written by Paul Natcher

Monday, 09 January 2017 06:17

It's been a while since the International Builders Show has been held in Orlando and while I have attended the IBS in Las Vegas at least once in the past few years, it is nice to have the show in my own backyard for a change. It is also the 75th anniversary of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB), the show's host association. The show has announced that 75th anniversary events will be ongoing throughout 2017. The IBS will return next year to Orlando in 2018 as every two years expect the show to alternate between Las Vegas and Orlando. The show also includes the Kitchen & Bath Industry Show (KBIS) bringing the combined expected turnout this year to 80,000 building industry professionals. I will report on any interesting products or other industry related news this week. For more information about the show visit www.buildersshow.com #IBSOrlando